

DIRECTIONS TO OSS

LOCATION

You can find us easily on Google Maps — search for “Oxford Space Systems, Harwell” or click here: <https://goo.gl/maps/vxA2w1W28sN2>.

Please note that our postcode will not bring you to our building when using GPS.

Oxford Space Systems are in the Satellite Applications Catapult building, but the building is also signposted “Electron Building” off the main route (Fermi Ave).

PARKING

There’s generally plenty of free parking around the Electron Building.

If the car park is full, you’ll find a space in the overflow car park that’s immediately next to us – you’ll see cars parked around the perimeter of the large bus stop area.

CHECKING IN

When you arrive please come into the Electron Building and ask for your OSS contact at Reception.

No photo ID is required but you’ll need to sign in and collect a visitor’s badge.

DIRECTIONS TO OSS

BY TRAIN

Our nearest station is “Didcot Parkway” and is around 45 min from London on a main route – so plenty of trains available.

You can easily check trains and availability at: www.thetrainline.com

From the station, you’ve got 2 options to get to the Harwell Campus: TAXI or BUS.

BY TAXI

OSS is around 15 min away from Didcot Parkway by taxi.

There are always plenty of taxis at the station just to the right of the station building in the large designated taxi rank.

Simply ask the driver for “The Electron Building at Harwell Science Campus” – we’re a well-known destination.

BY BUS

The X32 is a dedicated bus service from the station to the campus.

This stops in the overflow car park of the Electron Building.

See www.thames-travel.co.uk/timetables-fares for timetables and fares.
